A story behind or How the handpan stoppers were born.

David Kuckhermann and Nadishana had the same problem when they came to Julia Surba with the request to develop something to fix the slipping issue. She understood their struggles and developed two prototype pairs for both musicians, which they started to use right away and were very happy with the result. The handpan stoppers kept the handpan on the place it had to be while playing. That was great not to be annoyed by a slipping handpan but be totally focused on music! After two known handpan virtuoso started to use their new handpan stoppers they got many questions about them, because the slipping problem was a headache for many handpan players. Seeing that Julia thought that her input into the handpan community and music development should be this kind of help she could provide :). So she started the handpan stoppers production under her label "Kuzhebar Design", so everyone can get them now. Enjoy the music you play, skip the struggle!
